Tindall needs a new nose for wedding

Mike Tindall has been told by Princess Anne he needs to get his nose fixed before his marriage to Zara Phillips.

Mike Tindall, fiancé to Zara Phillips, has a bent nose so famous that it even has its own Face book page. The sportsman once had it surgically straightened but, thanks to a career playing rugby, it's been broken at least eight times.

Last weekend, Tindall noted that Princess Anne had asked him to have his nose straightened out prior to the wedding. While he probably won't comply, he seemed to find it amusing.

He revealed the story to staff on A League Of Their Own, the Sky 1 sports quiz. His future mother-in-law was apparently concerned about how the photographs might look. She may have a point, but it doesn't seem to bother Miss Phillips, who is also busy experimenting with her appearance.

Michael Tindall said that he is not in a hurry to repeat the nose surgery, implying that the procedure was not much fun. While his team-mates do make fun of him, he doesn't seem to care that his nose is described as "a relief map of the Pennines"
